

Providence Pediatric Neurology

Providence's growing pediatric neurology program offers inpatient and outpatient consultations and care for a variety of childhood neurological conditions. In addition to general neurology services, the program offers evaluation (including EEG monitoring) and management of childhood epilepsy, other seizure disorders and headache. Our child-friendly offices and waiting areas are designed and staffed to focus on the comfort of the families in our care.

Services

- Consultation, evaluation and care management for a broad spectrum of pediatric neurological conditions
- Inpatient and outpatient EEG, and inpatient continuous video EEG monitoring to improve the diagnosis and management of seizure disorders
- MRI services coupled with specialized pediatric anesthesiology
- Physical, occupational and speech therapies in close coordination with Providence Neurodevelopmental Center for Children
- Family education through the Jean Baton Swindells Resource Center for Children and Families to promote understanding of a child's condition and care
- Outpatient follow-up for children needing ongoing care
- Close coordination with referring physicians

Providence Pediatric Neurology specializes in treating children with:

- Epilepsy and other seizure disorders
- Headache
- Tic disorders
- Neuromuscular disorders
- Neurometabolic conditions
